Monkey chants Dwight does a Cantona

by IAIN BURCHELL

FURIOUS football star Dwight Yorke leapt into the stand and angrily confronted racist thugs during a Premiership game yesterday.

The fresh soccer race row erupted as sick Blackburn fans taunted their former player with monkey noises.

Birmingham City striker Yorke, 33, vaulted over the advertising boards to get face-to-face with the guilty spectators – just like Eric Cantona did during a match at Selhurst Park in 1995.

One fan said of the race jibes: "I simply couldn't believe what I was hearing."

"How can we lay into Spain for being racist and then have this happening in one of our grounds?"

The shocking scenes came only days after England's black stars were disgracefully abused in Madrid by Spanish fans.

Xmas cards ban on Jesus

THE British Red Cross has banned images of Jesus on its Christmas cards to prevent staff from being kidnapped.

Bosses at the charity do not want to be seen as representing just the Christian faith in Islamic countries like Iraq.

So they are using pictures of snowmen and winter scenes to decorate their cards.

It said: "We're not a political or religious organisation."

Murder

"We can't let down people in need by compromising our neutrality."

The move comes after Dublin-born aid worker Margaret Hassan was murdered by her Muslim captors last month.

But the decision has angered the Church of England.

A spokesman said: "It is unfortunate the British Red Cross no longer makes the association between Christmas and Christ in their shops."

IS IRAN NEXT?

Hoon: We must act over nuclear threat

■ by MARIANNA PARTASIDES

DEFENCE secretary Geoff Hoon raised fears Iran is next on the hit-list after Iraq when he warned of a possible Iranian nuclear strike on the UK in 15 years.

Mr Hoon raised the stakes in Middle East brinkmanship by saying Britain must be ready to defend itself.

His chilling warning sparked fears the Government plans to ditch its current softly-softly approach towards the rogue state and follow the US with a tougher stance.

Anti-war protesters believe President George Bush has already targeted Iran as the next nation to invade and Britain may sign up for that invasion.

Missiles

And Mr Hoon heightened alarm as he told students at Nottingham University: "In 15 years, when our friends in Iran have perfected an inter-continental ballistic missile with nuclear warhead, we'll have a vote."

"See how many people say I've got to press the button to stop the missiles coming in, I think I might win."

Mr Hoon's warning comes amid concerns Iran has rushed to produce bomb-grade uranium in secret after pledging it would stop its nuclear weapons programme by today.

Experts fear President Bush, bolstered by his recent re-election, will take pre-emptive strike action.

FILM GOAL: Beckham

Becks in reel deal

EXCLUSIVE by STEPHEN RIGLEY
MOVIE bosses want to turn David Beckham's life-story into a £50 million blockbuster.

And Hollywood chiefs hope the England skipper will take the starring role. Beckham, 29, is keen to launch a film career after hanging up his boots.

BEACH BABE: Pam

Pam's movie boob

THE Baywatch movie could be doomed by its two biggest stars - Pamela Anderson's breasts.

Hollywood bosses will be alarmed to hear that Pam isn't sure about returning to the beach and that red swimsuit.

The former Playboy babe said of her 34DD boobs: "They're so 1999."

Fans

"I think the world has moved on a long way since we did the show and I'm not sure anyone is that interested in them anymore."

Spandex rock stars snap up a sheep farm

EXCLUSIVE

■ by GARY NICKS
ROCK gods The Darkness want to be crop stars.

The party-loving band have coughed up nearly £600,000 for a farm so they can splash out even more - in their wellies.

Their Norfolk hideaway is a rustic, 17th century farmhouse in the tiny village of Spooner Row.

It's already a working sheep farm. But industry insiders reckon the lads could also build a recording studio on their sleepy acres.

Fans of the group - famous for their flamboyant bandanas and Spandex jumpsuits - will be pretty gobsmacked.

And so are the neighbours.

Settle

One said: "We couldn't believe it when we heard they were coming. They'll be great for the village. We don't get many stars around here."

Band members Justin Hawkins, 29, and his brother Dan, 28, hail from nearby Lowestoft.

Mum Sandy would not confirm the farm deal but admitted: "Dan, especially, has always said he would like to settle down round here."

The group, also including Frankie Poullain, 32, and Ed Graham, are on the new Band Aid single.

FIELD OF DREAMS. Justin could look like this!

He said: "The doggers might have come to buy some food for themselves - that would have been OK".

Tog Hill hit the headlines last year when former Welsh secretary Ron Davies admitted making repeated trips to the spot - but said he was there only to watch badgers.

HUGGY PAIR: Sophie welcomes Brian

Smoker Bri is fingered

A BEEFY security guard put the willies up Brian Harvey by threatening to carry out a rubber-glove bum search on him.

The singer had sneakily tried to smuggle a packet of ciggies into the jungle.

But when TV bosses got wind of his secret fag stash - which is banned under show rules - they decided to probe him about his contraband.

The security officer whipped out a rubber glove and told stunned

by PETER DYKE

Brian to "spread 'em". Horrified Brian gasped: "You're joking, right?"

Last night a show source added: "Brian went white as a sheet and quickly gave up his fags."

E17 star Brian entered the jungle camp yesterday - 24 hours after the other nine celebs.

The 30-year-old had delayed his arrival after the shock death of his beloved gran Betty, 70.

Jungle Grapevine

JOKER Joe Pasquale has already had a brush with the nasty neighbours when he was attacked by a leech. The comic told his fellow celebs about his encounter and they suggested salt would solve the problem.

He said: "I've got a leech stuck on my toe. It's sucking the blood out of there."

"I felt myself going faint as I was sitting there. I thought I was going to pass out."

"I kept my boots on in the water and I thought I would get nothing on me and then I took my sock off and there was a great big leech."

SOPHIE Anderton was the first celebrity to use the jungle loo.

A running theme in previous series has been Phil Tufnell's phrase "changing my shoes" as a code for celebs lucky enough not to be constipated.

Talk quickly turned to this favourite subject at the end of the first full day in camp when Sophie, 27, revealed she is the only camper who'd so far managed to "slip her shoes off".

HOSTS Ant and Dec will have a furry friend to keep them company in the latest series.

Executive producer Nataka Znak said Hogan the koala would be a regular feature in the duo's studio.

She added: "He's quite a little character and is set to become the font of all jungle knowledge."

"We had a koala in the American version of the series and we thought it'd be fun to bring one in again."

I'M A Celebrity chiefs have pulled the plug on a terrifying bushtucker trial, in which one star would have worn a helmet full of deadly spiders.

Bushtucker trial master Chris Lore - dubbed Dr Evil - had dreamed up the nightmare challenge using nasty funnel webs.

But he realised the jaw-dropping stunt would be too dangerous. If the spiders bite, their venom can kill.

THE campers have displayed their talents with a sing-song around the camp fire on the evening of day two.

Sheila Ferguson, 57, kicked things off with a rendition of The Way We Were. Nancy Sorrell, 30, also impressed with Cry Me A River.

The group asked Brian to sing but he said it was too early as he had only arrived that day.

BAWL SAINT

Natalie sobs 'I want to go home' on Day 1

BOT A VIEW: Sexy Sophie bands to take a drink. Right, Ant and Dec

TEARFUL Natalie Appleton is already screaming "Get Me Out Of Here" after cracking up in the jungle.

The former All Saints singer wowed I'm A Celebrity fans by stripping off to bathe with Sophie Anderton and Nancy Sorrell.

But later she burst into tears and told her jungle pals: "I'm going home."

Bookmakers have reacted by dramatically slashing odds on her leaving the show from 5-1 to 6-4.

Ladbroke's spokesman Warren Lush said: "We thought Sophie would be the one to struggle - but Natalie is having a really hard time and it looks like she could go."

Natalie's throats to quit started only hours after she got into the camp. She had already been sick on the helicopter ride into the outback to start the show.

And she wailed: "I can't handle it. I've not slept for two days."

"I'm going to go home - I don't know if I can do this. I don't think I have got the strength."

"My friends are watching me now and I know that I'm letting them down - I'm really sorry. Everyone is really sweet but I'm not right."

The 31-year-old star then went into the bush telegraph and wept. Natalie was comforted by Nancy and Janet Street-Porter while she revealed she was "exhausted".

Janet, 57, said: "Just calm down a minute. You are going to make yourself ill."

"We are all in the same boat as you. If you don't want to eat anything that she was already bonkers and could send all the other jungle stars crazy with her behaviour."

Nat claims she is like someone with compulsive obsessive disorder - which means she cannot bear dirty loos, untidiness and bad hygiene.

The mum-of-two hoped her jungle experience would be "therapeutic" and she desperately wanted to keep her antics under control.

Natalie, who is married to Liam Howlett from dance act The Prodigy, said: "I need to nip in the bud all the compulsive things that I do."

"My obsessive behaviour is getting out of hand."

"If I don't sort out my life now I'll end up like Jack Nicholson in As God As It Gets - and that's the God's honest truth."

"I need to get a grip on things and realise what's important in my life."

"I'll deal with my fears as in the jungle - I'll have no way of getting out of it."

Natalie's behaviour comes as no surprise to Oasis frontman Liam Gallagher, who lives with her pop star sister Nicole.

When Nat rang Liam to tell him she had signed up for I'm A Celebrity he told her: "You're nuts!"

But Natalie is not the only one in the camp to shed a few tears.

Nancy Sorrell also cried over her comedian husband Vic Reeves.

The blonde model said: "I haven't seen him for ages and I'm just missing him."

by PETER DYKE in Australia

She apologised to her fellow contestants before walking off.

But tired Janet wasn't impressed. She said: "Why has she got to wake up everyone? It's so selfish."

And Three Degrees singer Sheila told the other women in the camp: "I love Natalie to death but I could kill her right now."

Natalie realised some of the other girls were fed up with her and once again went to the bush telegraph.

She told the cameras: "Janet does not give me a chance to find my feet."

Just hours before Natalie went into the jungle, she warned the Daily Star

YOUR GUIDE TO THE SHOW

THE jungle fun kicked off last night and we're going to be glued to our screens for the next fortnight watching the celebs flirt and fight.

Every night there will be highlights of the day's events on ITV1 and live footage from the camp is screened through the night on ITV2.

During the first week no-one will be evicted from the camp and each night viewers will be voting for which contestant they want to see tackle a stomach-churning Bushtucker Trial.

Booted

In the second week you vote for the celebrity you want to stay in the jungle. Each night the contestant with the least votes will be booted off.

By December 6 there will be three contestants left and two will leave the jungle before the king or queen is announced by presenters Ant and Dec.

To vote for your chosen celebrity to do a Bushtucker Trial call their personal phone number - see the Jungleometer on Page 6 - or text their first name to 87654, for example text Huggy to 87654.

DINNER MATES: Fran Cosgrave and Joe Pasquale who faced a tough first outback trial

Giant bug bites

Fran in the nuts

FRIGHTENED Fran Cosgrave was left screaming in agony after his privates were clawed by a giant jungle creature.

He was in real pain as his manhood was bitten by an alien-looking crayfish called a yabbie.

The nightclub owner only managed to win four meals which had to be shared between the 10 contestants. Doctors

by MARK JEFFERIES

checked he was OK to continue on the show after he moaned: "I've had a few dangerous creatures round my shorts before - but that one was pinching."

Cosgrave, 26, was asked to choose two helpers for the trial called Stake Out, and picked Joe Pasquale and Antonio Fargas.

As they made their way to the jungle clearing, telly presenter Dec told the men that although they had had a free meal on Saturday night they would now have to work for their suppers.

Cosgrave was staked to the ground in a star shaped wooden pen. Pasquale, 43, was blindfolded and had to line up boxes containing stars and creepy crawlies over containers, then release the contents, trying to get a star in each one.

Fargas, 58, had to guide Joe to the correct position. As they started, Fran asked: "What am I supposed to do?"

Dec replied: "You're just lying there taking it all. Taking it on the chin quite literally. You've got the easy job you can just sit there and relax."

Pasquale released a box of ants in the right position and the star landed in the holder, earning one meal for the camp, but showering Cosgrave in insects.

Biting

Box two held yabbies but Pasquale missed the spot.

Box three's load of worms landed on Cosgrave's crotch. Box four, containing crickets, also missed. Box five contained eel slime. The star landed in the right pot earning another meal for the group. But the gloop also landed all over Cosgrave's face.

Box six contained fish heads and oil. The star landed in the right holder but by then Irish hunk Cosgrave was suffering.

He said: "Whatever that is, it is biting me bad man. My ass and my balls are getting bitten to death man."

The seventh box of flies earned a fourth star for the lads. But Cosgrave started to struggle as the insects crawled all over him.

Before box eight, containing spiders, it all became too much.

He said: "Something is biting me on the nuts."

"No mate, I'm A Celebrity... Get Me Out Of Here! There's something chewing on my nuts and it's pretty annoying. Oh yes."

The trial was stopped and Cosgrave apologised saying he was disappointed to only get four meals.

THE MEAN STREET

MOUTHY Janet Street-Porter is already driving her fellow jungle celebrities round the bend.

The former TV exec, right, started on Paul Burrell and Brian Harvey within 24 hours of the show starting.

She mocked Burrell's previous job as a royal servant and said he must have been brainwashed to take the position.

Paul said: "I'm not brainwashed." Janet replied: "You are brainwashed to be able to do the job."

Paul, 46, then told the group: "If you don't like it, you get out of it. Shall we agree to differ?"

But Janet, 57, blasted: "What? That the

by MARK JEFFERIES

monarchy is past its sell-by-date and even in spite of how they treated you, you will stick up for them?"

In her second verbal volley she let rip on Brian for daring to smoke a cigarette. After his two-hour trek to get into the camp, he was desperate to light up.

But Janet said: "Not another smoker. I'm going to get bloody cancer."

Angry Brian, 30, wasn't impressed and made a trip to the Bush Telegraph.

He asked: "Is Janet moody? Because she looks miserable. I don't know if we are going to get on."

Roo or false?

A KANGAROO and a Tasmanian devil have been sneaked into an area near the camp, it was whispered last night.

Skippy and his bear-shaped pal could be used for bush tucker trials.

Trial boss Chris Lore, who has already hinted that he'll bring in a "big mammal", said: "I can't say what it is - but it's bigger than a bread bin."

Junk in jungle

SQUEAKY-voiced funnyman Joe Pasquale says dodgy kebabs have helped prepare him for eating bugs in the jungle.

He said: "I've been on the road for 20 years and had to eat some rubbish in my time."

"It gets you ready to eat just about anything."

Trouble is Joe won't be able to count on there being any chilli sauce on hand to disguise the taste this time round.

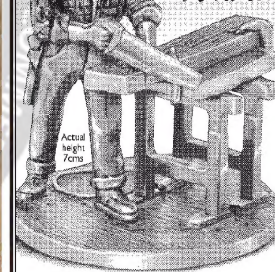

Snack attack

OUCH... Fran Cosgrave has more than ants in his pants on the first bush trial. A giant crayfish, known as a yabby, crawled up his trousers and gave him a nasty nip. Eventually Fran could take no more and screamed to be let out. He said: "It was something biting my ass. They were just messing with the wrong bit. I thought testicles. No way man."

PRIDE AND GROOM

BRITISH men spend over a year of their lives shaving and making themselves look irresistible.

And they fork out £124 million-a-year on grooming, according to new research by product makers Scherma.

The North West has Britain's vainest men, the North East has the least – and Londoners are the biggest spenders on grooming products, splashing out £30m-a-year.

OUCH! GALS CAN TAKE MORE PAIN THAN MEN

IT'S official – scientists have proved women are tougher than men!

New research has finally revealed ladies are able to take more pain than blokes.

Professor Mari Botti quizzed more than 100 patients recovering from heart surgery – and he found the men who took part in his study need stronger painkillers than women.

The Aussie boffin also discovered men rely on the drugs for a lot longer after the operation even though they experience the same level of pain.

■ by KATIE BEGLEY

Women stayed on low doses of morphine for 12 hours while men relied on high doses for 17 hours.

Tougher

And Professor Botti reckons females took fewer painkillers because they don't complain as much as men.

He revealed: "It may be that women are simply better at managing their pain. Women may not state that they have pain or may do so in a more subdued manner."

Claire Rayner, president of the UK Patients' Association, claimed the results are long overdue because women have always been able to deal better with feelings of discomfort.

She said: "Women can cope with pain a lot better than men."

"If we didn't then the species would die out – or certainly no-one would have brothers or sisters." But British boxer

Danny Williams, who knocked out Mike Tyson in July, thinks the Aussie professor should have found tougher lads for his research.

Whinge

The fighter said: "I don't know who these men were in the study but the guys I know don't whinge every time they feel pain."

"I think they need to find some tougher guys for the next study to even things out a bit."

TUG-OF-LOVE BLUNKETT IN COURT FIGHT FOR 'HIS' KIDS

He demands right to prove 'I'm the daddy'

DAVID BLUNKETT is facing a court showdown with his pregnant former lover as he tries to prove he's the father of both her kids.

The Home Secretary has launched a legal bid to show he is the biological dad to married Kimberly Fortier's unborn baby and her two-year-old son William.

But pals of Ms Fortier, 43, says she is ignoring a letter from his lawyers demanding the right to prove the children are his.

And if Mr Blunkett is found to be the father of either child he will want access rights, which may have to be decided by a civil court.

Mr Blunkett, 57, was said to be devastated when American-born Ms Fortier ended their three-year affair after it was revealed this summer.

She decided to stay with her husband - millionaire magazine executive Stephen Quinn, 60 - who is convinced he is the father of William and the baby.

But the couple have been rocked by the letter from Mr Blunkett's legal team.

Affair

A source close to Ms Fortier said: "She is burying her head in the sand and simply wishes this would all go away."

"Maybe she will deal with it once the baby has arrived. Right now there is no sign of her agreeing to Blunkett's requests."

"Her friends are concerned. Some believe strongly she should deal with this issue because it isn't going to go away."

Divorced Mr Blunkett, who has three grown-up sons, is known to be close to William.

Earlier this summer he

■ by IAIN BURCHELL

took the toddler and Ms Fortier on holiday to the Greek island of Corfu, where onlookers described them as acting like a happy family.

And William was often with his mum when she visited Mr Blunkett's official London residence.

Ms Fortier, publisher of The Spectator magazine, married her husband in June 2001. She is due to give birth in early January.

Mr Blunkett has refused to discuss the affair.

His ex-lover yesterday refused to comment on his reported legal challenge.

Her husband Stephen would only say: "I have not made any comment about my private life so far and I jolly well won't."

ASBO plans for terror suspects

■ by TONY LEONARD

HOME Secretary David Blunkett will introduce anti-social behaviour orders for terror suspects amid fears of an imminent al-Qaida attack.

He said officials were looking at a range of measures including anti-terror courts without a jury to allowing wire-tap evidence.

Civil orders could be imposed against a person who had not committed an offence but was suspected of "acts preparatory to terrorism".

Mr Blunkett said the proposals would shift the treatment of suspects from civil law to the "normal justice process" - but the plans won't be in place before the next general election.

Rod's Penny is just Specs on legs

■ by NADINE LINGE

GORGEOUS Penny Lancaster shows she has real specs appeal in these sizzling shots.

The leggy girlfriend of wrinkly rocker Rod Stewart, 59, gave fans an eyeful as she launched the hunt for the sexiest specs wearer in Britain.

And she revealed that a pair of glasses on her man is a real turn on.

Model and photographer Penny, 33, said: "Specs make a man look very sexy."

The Miss or Mr Sexy Specs 2005 competition, which is open to men and women aged 16 and over, runs from now until January 31.

Heats will be held in Dublin, Glasgow, Newcastle, Leeds, Birmingham, Cardiff, Exeter and London in March and Penny will present the prizes at the final in London.

DEAR Esther

SHOULD I CLAIM FOR MY INJURY?

I was in my car waiting at a zebra crossing when I was suddenly hit from behind. For months I have suffered with back pain and anxiety. It has affected both my work and my life as a student, my friends think I deserve compensation, can you help me?

■ ESTHER SAYS: I'm sorry to hear about your accident. If the accident wasn't your fault then you should claim. It is very easy to do, just pick up the phone, call 0800 180 4060 and speak to an experienced advisor at Accident Advice Helpline. They will be able to tell you if you are eligible.

When your claim is pursued, their expert panel of solicitors who specialise in winning accident claims work on your behalf on a NO WIN NO FEE basis. You do not need any money to make a claim, the Accident Advice Helpline Compensation Claim Protection Plan will ensure that all costs involved in making your claim are covered.

It could take only five minutes to find out if you can make a claim. It really is simple!

Esther Rantzen

Thank you!

I picked up the phone and within minutes I discovered I could win substantial damages. The advisor was really helpful and guided me through the claim. I knew I had nothing to lose, because of the unique Compensation Claim Protection Plan. I'd advise anyone who's suffered a personal injury to make that call right now.

VANESSA FELTZ

Twice a week
Monday &
Thursday

Brave Jan does not give a damn

I'VE met only two women in my entire life who genuinely don't give a damn if you hate their guts. One is Madonna. The other is Janet Street-Porter.

Most normal mortals, particularly of the fairer sex, love to be loved. We are all grovelling people-pleasers, desperate to be approved of, patted on the back and, if possible, worshipped.

We'll do anything to raise a smile or earn a few Brownie points. We'll flatter, wear short skirts, giggle at unfunny jokes, bake cakes, give head, or crawl across broken glass if it means you will adore us.

All of us, that is, except Her Madge and Our Janet. JSP has chewed up three husbands and spat them out again. She pissed off everyone in power at the BBC with one flexing of her venomous tongue, calling them the three M's - middle-aged, middle class and male.

She's written an entire autobiography about having sex for a fiver for a bet, her two abortions and how much she loathed her mother. She even devoted a whole chapter to the true story of her attempt to do serious, if not fatal, damage to her despised sister by pushing her down the stairs.

We all harbour feelings of deadly sibling rivalry, not to mention wishing we'd been adopted so we don't have to be blood-related to our own parents.

But most of us shove them under the carpet.

Compare Janet's no-holds-barred hate fest with the shiny, happy-clappy tripe served up by most celebs as their "true life story" and you will see the woman is almost psychotically fearless. She's not afraid to be a national villain. She's not scared of incurring the wrath of her fellow celebs and she doesn't give a monkey's about eating her own words.

Yes, she condemned reality TV as "X-rated entertainment with all the appeal of last night's chicken pie". Yes, she's on record as saying: "I hate reality shows. I'd rather watch a goldfish bowl." So, she's taken the huge fee and she is a hypocrite.

So what? What are you going to do about it?

Watching JSP make mincemeat of ex-Royal butler Paul Burrell will be TV heaven. He's everything she can't stand - a jumped up poser who has made a living crawling up the backsides of the rich and famous.

Janet's hard core. She's made a living rubbishing all the privilege, pomp and puffery he's dedicated to preserving. Seeing the straight-talker square up against the arse-licker will be a delight.

If JSP makes allies it will be for purely strategic reasons. We already know she didn't recognise Nancy Sorrell at her own wedding because she thought she'd be kitted out in rhinestones and a thong as befits a former lapdancer.

We also know JSP's a mate of Nancy's hubby Vic Reeves.

Will she team up with Nance out of loyalty to Vic? Or will her true contempt for well-stacked blondes ooze out regardless?

One thing's for sure, JSP won't bore us rigid with a tear-stained Kerry McFadden-esque list of who she's missing. She won't be missing a soul. She's so egocentric, the only person whose company she rates is her own.

If she's there, she'll be permanently riveted by her own witticisms. She's already said she'd rather shag a cockroach than any of her jungle mates, so she won't, presumably, be missing nookie either. Janet Street Porter has sweet FA to prove and less than nothing to lose. She doesn't need the dosh and, at pushing 60, is the living, breathing opposite of a wannabe.

She's been there, done that and stuck a bejewelled safety pin through the T-shirt. Let's enjoy crowning her Queen of Mean.

NO FEAR: Janet has nothing to prove in the jungle

Spicy sales are red hot

SALES of curries and other ethnic meals have rocketed.

Brits spent £1billion on Indian, Chinese, Thai, Mexican and Oriental ready meals last year - a rise of 7%.

Spice-loving families forked out £54m on naan bread and £190m on ethnic cooking sauces.

Figures revealed by trade magazine The Grocer also revealed 60% of Brits now buy a chilled ethnic ready meal on average seven times a year.

Tesco was top for ethnic food sales, with Sainsbury's second.

A spokesman for The Grocer said: "When it comes to the weekly shop, we are all ethnic now."

Net gain for Xmas

■ A RECORD 10.1 million UK shoppers are expected to buy Christmas presents online this year, almost three million up on 2003.

The average online shopper will spend £176 each - a total £1.8billion sales - says a study by market analysts Continental Research.

THE OFFICIAL REALITY TV PAPER

JILL AND ALED IN DANCE TO DEATH

EXCLUSIVE by KATIE BEGLEY

EASTENDERS star Jill Halfpenny and partner Darren Bennet are dancing all the way to a ballroom showdown.

And experts say they will be battling singer Aled Jones and Darren's real-life partner Lilia Kopylova in the finals of the smash hit Strictly Come Dancing.

That's the prediction from senior BBC insiders, who have analysed how the public have been voting.

Only disastrous performances from the two couples can now keep them out of a dance to the death.

And many sources believe that Aled and his partner will win - despite the fact the dancing is much harder for an inexperienced male who has to lead his professional partner. Last night a series insider claimed: "At the moment, Jill and Aled are heading for the final."

"Jill is almost as good as a professional ballroom dancer, and has impressed the panel of judges week after week. "But Aled has had to lead Lilia, and, as such, is doing the harder job. The evidence is that the public do appreciate that. Aled could edge it."

Unlucky
If the public continue voting as they have done, then Olympic Silver medalist Roger Black and blonde bombshell Camilla Dallerup will be next to go.

They will be followed by camp comic Julian Clary and brunette beauty Erin Boag. Olympic Gold winner Denise Lewis and partner Ian Waite will narrowly miss out on a place in the finals. But the source stressed: "As couples exit, the voting patterns change too. And that can be hard to predict. Denise and Ian may be very unlucky."

"There is a perception that they are too good which is taking votes away from them."

Another complication is that the remaining couples are very well-liked by viewers. The source said: "There is nothing to dislike about the contestants who are left. They're all nice people."

IN FORM: Jill Halfpenny

King Cole is out

BALLROOM hunk Brendan Cole waltzed off in a huff last night after he was booted off Strictly Come Dancing.

The pro who won the last contest with sexy newsreader Natasha Kaplinsky, 31, had set his sights on retaining the title with new partner, Casualty star Sarah Manners, 29.

Bump
But the 28-year-old Kiwi has been side-stepped only half way through the show.

An insider said: "The king has fallen from grace with a bump. The show was his life."

To make matters worse for Cole, his ex-fiancee Camilla Dallerup, 30, is still going strong with her partner, Roger Black.

Cast-off Cass sticks with Shaz

X FACTOR'S latest cast-off Cassie Compton is set to record an album...with mentor Sharon Osbourne as her manager.

The 17-year-old singer, right, said yesterday she wanted to be another Joss Stone, the teenage soul sensation, after Sharon promised her on Saturday night's ITV1 show: "I'm sticking with you, missus."

Sharon refused to choose between Cassie and her other act, Tabby Callaghan, 23.

But after judges Louis Walsh and Simon Cowell and viewers swung the vote, Cassie said: "Sharon has big plans for me."

SARAH HARDING DATES N*E*R*D

GORGEOUS Pharrell Williams got more than he bargained for during a night out in London... a date with Girls Aloud babe Sarah Harding.

The N*E*R*D frontman was charmed by the blonde bombshell when they met at London's exclusive Cirque Club at a bash thrown by Mad Nights. Single Sarah, 23, made a beeline for Phazza, 31, who has jetted to the UK from Rome for a gig at the Hammersmith Apollo tonight.

Electric

Sarah and her bandmates are huge fans of Pharrell's electric hip-hop tunes and they rushed to meet the American in the VIP area.

"As soon as the girls saw Pharrell they dashed over," our spy told us.

"They are big fans of his music and love the fact he's happy to work with pop artists like Justin Timberlake.

"He's only vaguely aware of their work but thinks they've got the right attitude to do things a bit differently. And the fact that he's drop-dead gorgeous hastened their steps. "He was grace personified and chuffed to be surrounded by these beautiful women. He obviously fancied Sarah and before long they only had eyes for each other. "He asked Sarah if she'd be attending tonight's after-show party. Now she's really excited about meeting him again."

We don't blame her. N*E*R*D Williams is a far better catch than her ex, Calum Best.

And oh how inspired it is, if clueless Californian chatter really is your thing...

LOVED-UP: Usher

EMINEM launches the MTV Awards in Rome by taking to the stage with kids totting replica guns, before playing an exclusive gig for just 500 people in London. Meanwhile in Rome Usher and Naomi Campbell make their love official. Our OK! Celebrity Chart is based on stars' coverage in Express newspapers – your Daily Star, our sister papers the Daily Express and Sunday Express, and OK!, Britain's best celebrity magazine. It's THE guide to who's hot and who's not that's got everyone talking.
